Sunday evenings, sometimes I'd go to Ruby's quilt group at Corinthian Baptist Church. It was white wood with a brown roof. There were windows of stained glass squares beside the arched doorway and a little tower with a bell that Pastor Martin rang on Sunday mornings. I liked how Corinthian Baptist always smelled like bayberries. I liked the church's dark red carpet, the bright oak, the raised altar with the lush green (even though plastic) ferns, the purple altar cloths with crosses like gold mirrors and the small choir stand with the red slipcovers and cushions that The Flying Needles made for the chairs.

Tuesdays, I usually went with Ruby and Anna or Mei-Yeh to the Applegate Mall. One Saturday a month, I caught the Greyhound to Aunt True's and got off at the bus stop in New Bedford. I read novels by the

Write a short description of what Liberty means to you:

Freedom seems to be the closest word to describe my concept of liberty. It's about being free to make choices and also about having a say in the way our society is run. I don't think I thought much about my individual freedom before COVID-19 came along. I think it is important now though to use our voices to leverage the opportunities this crisis offers to improve the state of the world. We need to speak up when we can for all those that don't have a say, for all human beings, for all living creatures and for our planet.

At the supermarket

Her adolescent hands take up my groceries.
In careful English she says It is warm today and I see the scar that straddles her char-dark forehead.

Its length is chilling: there is no refusing the machete's image, the thunk and force of the blow.

Yes, I say, and lift my bags to leave:
my heart cleft open, filling with this day's warmth.

Liberty means...

Write a short description of what Liberty means to you:

I wrote this poem when Tasmania was receiving many refugees from horrifically violent civil wars in Africa. This real-life experience made me reflect on the value of my own liberty, the preciousness of my ability to simply enjoy a warm summer's day in peace. I still think often of this encounter.

Night on my own, Yarra River
Esther Ottaway

Ferries glide by, trains go at appointed minutes.
My coffee cools. I have the luxury of long thoughts,
the state of aloneness as foreign as the place.
A clock still set to the hours of my child
I track her movements, text at the right times, feel the strange untethering of letting go.
No one is waiting for me, no one dependent on the high wire of my actions –
I keep checking, have I got time? And I know before the day I drink in the sweet sorrow of empty nesting, time is a river flowing away.

Liberty for google: The state of being free within society from oppressive restrictions imposed by authority on one's way of life, behaviour, or political views.

Liberty for me: the lightness in my tone and the heaviness of the topics I speak of, openly stating my opinion with the knowledge I have the right to tell it.

Shouting among the throng of voices while also quieting my own to listen to those stories once silenced. The knowledge that my voice, my opinions and mind are safe to be freely used and shared as one of the future leaders of the world.

Liberty for 2020: Protecting the people by restricting people, your freedom to decorate your face mask is whatever colour you want. Knowing that eventually there will be a light at the end of the tunnel. The shared stories, shared struggles, understanding one another more easily. The knowledge tucked safely in the back of your mind that one day you will walk outside, breathe in the fresh air and feel the sun on your skin, free of restrictions.

Liberty, the loose screw in the well-oiled machine that is Humanity. I mean think about it just for a second, just one moment. Without liberty, humanity falls into what? Anarchy, disarray, no. Without liberty humanity becomes the Perfect working species, like a colony of ants, Thoughtlessly Following their queen into whatever dark peril into which she Commands. A perfect well-oiled machine of Efficiency. But what are we then? No difference from the insects we Squish for buzzing too loud, or the cows we eat and Kill just because we like the taste. Liberty is the thing that separates us from the ants and the cows. Our Choices, our Freedom, our Ideas, all those things that make us so breathtakingly Human. All those things would disappear if it weren't for that one idea incepted into our brain since evolution itself. That We Are Free, liberated. That we Want To Be Free. That we as humans will not stand to be Contained, to be told what to do. And that we will Never ever have our liberty Taken Away From Us.
